Our class's science fair will be an exciting event.

All twenty-five students have bringed in projects. They have written reports, and they have drew pictures to explain their work.

Cindy have learned about electromagnets. Her project shows the connection between electricity and magnetism. Be sure to watch her demonstration. She starts with an ordinary nail. Then she attach it to a battery with some wire. Now the nail attract paper clips and other metal objects.

Carlos has maked ten paper airplanes. He tryed out each one at home. All the airplanes flied beautifully, but one design were the best by far. At the fair, Carlos will invite other students to predict which plane will fly best. Then he test the predictions.

These are just two of the experiments and demonstrations you will see. Many may surprise you. Perhaps you wont' believe your eyes at first. However, as you talk to the students, you'll learn more about each project. You'll realize that what you're seeing isnt a trick. It's science. You will be learning a lot.
